

Continuing Professional Development Policy

1. BACKGROUND

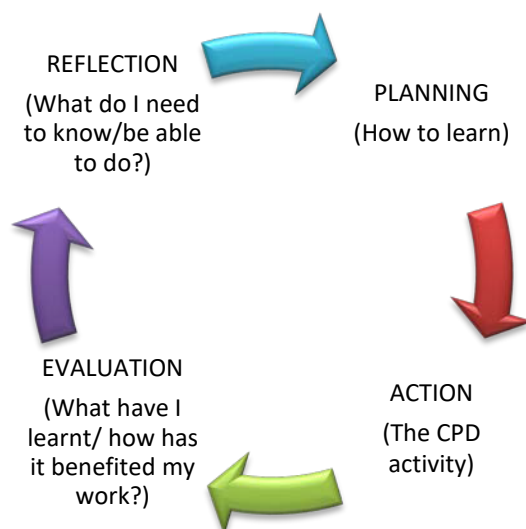

CPD consists of any educational activity which helps to maintain, develop or increase knowledge, problem-solving, technical skills or professional performance standards throughout a practitioner's working life

All members have a responsibility to themselves, their fellow members and their clients to ensure they are current with professional and industry standards and best practice. This ensures that they will offer quality services to their clients, employers and the property industry as a whole.

2. DETERMINING YOUR TRAINING NEEDS

The way to get maximum benefit from your professional development activities is to continually reflect on and plan the training and development based on your current and future professional needs.

The Institute CPD model is based on a continuous cycle of Planning, Action, Evaluation and Reflection. Members are encouraged to follow this cycle, to evaluate the result or impact of the CPD activity and to plan how they will build their professional skills and knowledge.

Members are responsible for their personal learning and identifying and meeting their needs.

To provide for members in isolated areas, the minimum credit standard can be obtained through private planned study, formal study taken extramurally or at a local training establishment – provided that the area of study is directly related to property. Exemption from Professional Ethics and Professional Standards is granted while overseas

Upon permanent return to New Zealand members must complete the following CPD in the same calendar year:

8. COMPLIANCE MONITORING

A member's failure to maintain and improve professional competence is a breach of a significant professional duty and may be subject to disciplinary action. It is unfair to those members who do comply with their CPD requirements to allow non-complying members to claim the same professional status.

Members can expect to be audited once every five years. Those members selected for audit are required to submit additional materials in support of their online CPD, e.g. personal record of objectives, learning outcomes, course notes and receipts.

9. NON-COMPLIANCE
